Programs & Networks

- School Justice PSD
 - A campaign with PSD students to encourage the dissolution of the school district's partnership with the local police department

We also expanded our network, by welcoming the Hispanic Women's Farming Proyecto as a fiscal sponsee, and supported their growth as a staple of the community at the intersection of food justice, immigrant justice & capacity building for women of color farmers. Together we asked, how can we deepen our relationships to a vast network of projects and what does it take to ensure those projects are deeply resourced?

Collaboration Highlights

The theory and practice of healing justice have shaped our ability as humans to bring seemingly disparate entities into wholeness. We're humbled by the opportunity to continue nurturing the work of a thriving ecosystem of people and projects organizing and guiding our community towards justice.

We are immensely grateful for you and your support as we continue to do this work in Fort Collins and Northern Colorado.

It is a joy and honor to work alongside community members, families, organizers, artists, other nonprofits, and our city, while resourcing our work for the future.

Thank YOU!
